

An aerial photograph of a traditional Chinese courtyard. The courtyard is surrounded by multi-story buildings with blue tiled roofs and wooden balconies. The roofs are arranged in a U-shape, creating a central open space. The tiles are a deep blue color, and the wooden elements are a natural brown. The courtyard is paved with stone tiles and has some greenery in the center. The overall scene is bright and clear, suggesting a sunny day.

We promote the idea of green, sustainable ecological protection. The building uses traditional methods of rammed earth and solid wood. The design features large two-way windows that ensure natural ventilation. As a result, no air conditioning is needed in the summer, and the room temperature remains between 18-24°C. In winter, the wall heating system maintains an indoor temperature of 16-22°C without requiring additional heating.

建筑及设计：夯土实木传统建筑，冬暖夏凉，双层中空防紫外线大窗玻璃，不用空调整冷，双向自然通风，环绕式墙暖取温，室内温度在16-24°C之间。

Dahua, a native of the Shaxi Bai people, has worked in hospitality and as an outdoor travel guide for over a decade. He began his career at Shaxi Laomadian, the first hotel in Shaxi, and in 2017, he and his wife opened their own place, Shaxi Dianting. There, he provided unique experiences along with accommodation, such as climbing, hiking, outdoor picnics, and mushroom picking, while sharing stories of the mountains and local culture. By 2019, Shaxi's tourism had become more commercialized, later further impacted by the pandemic. Dissatisfied with the increasing noise pollution in the main village, he sought to create a more personal guest experience. In 2024, he returned to his own village, just three kilometers from the tourist area, nestled in quiet rice fields, where he built his new place, Village UpStay, on his family's land.
